Lynne Cooper Note that the plan is to charge more removing accessibility for low income and existing patrons who dont have vehicles because they cant AFFORD them. Buses are the only means of accessing community by introducing a new expensive service and yes fine print says will cost more for passengers they are trapping people at home. It will decrease usage as these existing passengers will be unable to afford the fares.

Chris Flannery Lynne Cooper but not alot of people will agree with the changes as uber uses credit card as one of my friends told me as she uses it some times and not everyone got credit cards or use them all the time and use money like most of my friends and i use for the bus

Blair Rossiter The rivers. If you do one thing successfully make it cleaning up our rivers, stop shingle extraction from the river beds, find the reason the flows have diminished (I think you already know but won't act accordingly). Do your jobs and sort your district out.

We need to develop ways to make better use of the water we have, and this is one of the topics in our Long Term Plan proposal - Time to Act.

Why now? Many of our freshwater resources are under pressure and the increasing effects of climate change mean we can't wait to act. A regional water assessment is under way to understand future demand and supply to ensure we make the best choices to ease pressure on our freshwater.

What are your thoughts on this precious resource?... See More

Julia Spinks You cod start by getting rid of these gas fired water heaters which waste about a bucket of water before you get any hot water. I also think the dam should have been built as we need to store water when it does rain.

Yolanda Glindo Sanchez There is a chance to secure a supply of water but sadly some people there in council stopped the water reservoir/dam that could hold precious water similar In the South island. Also why do we need to allow bottling company to operate here since we are promoting to the world that we are fruit bowl and winery region here in NZ?To think that the two sectors are using lots and lots of water? How long the water bottling company's able to operate and when their licence expired? I hope there is a stop to it coz I am afraid that one day we are the ones here in HB. living without enough water to consume.

One of the topics we want your thoughts on is about a pilot to transform the region's eroding hillsides - we know that putting the right trees in the right places is the best way to slow erosion, while improving our freshwater quality and biodiversity.

Councillor Will Foley is excited about the proposed trial of the Right Tree Right Place programme which he sees as having economic and environmental benefits for the farming community, local economy and wider community.

The Upper Tukituki scheme protects the productive land of Ruataniwha Plains and the towns of Waipawa and Waipukurau from being flooded by the Upper Tukituki River and tributaries.

We now need to remove the gravel that's built up to ensure the river system is more resilient to climate change, protecting our community from flooding.

While we have help from government funding, we need to add to this. What do you think about the scheme?... See More

Gedly Gedly Interesting. Your statement says you need to remove the buildup of gravel. Why is this up for discussion? Hemming braided river systems to allow farming has its downfall too. Self seeding river filter plants are cleared..because of the shingle buildup.

Paula Fern Gedly Gedly right. This isn't the first time the regional council has brought this up for discussion and even formed a consultation group. It ended up being a way to shift the burden of rates to the townships by stealth, and the consultation group wasn't in agreement so were quietly shutdown. The wording this time seems to be eluding to this approach again. We have braided rivers that have been encroached on by stopbanks built too close to the rivers and farming practices not in harmony with the river ecosystem. We have aggradation (gravel buildup) because of a combination of those stopbanks being too close and an over allocation of water for irrigation. Normal flows push gravel down the rivers; flood events push them further to the coast where it's needed, and also used to change the river course and feed the soils. This isn't happening. Removing gravel is creating an ongoing cost and refusing to look at the big picture, and shifting focus away from how we need to radically change what we are doing. What do you think Chris?

Jason Christensen Removing gravel from the rivers just shifts more sediment to the lower reaches and into the bay. The sedimentation issues in the bay are out of control! Shellfish beds, worm beds, crab feeding grounds all suffer because of this. The inshore fishery in the bay has been depleted enough. If you keep this up the marine ecosystem in Hawkes Bay won't exist within the first 1km of the shoreline. It's time you lot wake up.

Like · Reply · Message · 1w

Jarred Bird Jason Christensen the sediment will come down regardless in a flood event if not worse if the channel gets too shallow because it will erode all the historic silt deposits on the flood plain as the water velocity will be increased. What you need to focus on is stopping new silt and clay particles from entering the river from adjoining land.

2

Jason Christensen Jarred Bird water velocity is increased if you reduced the channel, not increase it. That is an outright no brainer. Yes, silt will come down regardless, but the more you extract, the less opportunity there is for heavy particles to settle. Simple physics will show you these things. You can reduce erosion of flood plains by not spraying inside and alongside the water body, and replanting the river edges with decent rooting plants like flax. Restored wetlands are proven. Rivers will always alter route according to the land. It's how it's been forever. It's accepted that around towns it needs to be controlled. You need to realize that narrowing the natural bed of a river by extracting gravel does not slow, nor decrease the water flow. It increases the ferocity of that flow, shifting more gravel. Flood plains ARE the natural route for natural high water events. Putting a high lip on it may contain it in most instances, but it won't stop every one. Yes, I understand that digging a channel moves it and encourages it to go where you tell it, but the consequence is you're smothering the seabed. When you understand the dance of the Awa, and it's journey from Maunga to Moana, then you will understand that no matter where you upset the balance in the chain, you alter the end result.

Like · Reply · Message · 1w · Edited

Jarred Bird Jason Christensen yep as I said and extracting the gravel is increasing the channel size slowing the water down. Allowing more silt to fall out of suspension and the silt will be removed with the next lot of gravel removed once the beach has built back up.

It's only going to get worse as more trees are removed up in the head waters of the rivers wilding pine removal in the Kaweka's etc. Thousands of tonnes of silt used to get removed from the Lower Tukituki every year, none now gets removed and will keep making its way out to sea.

Like · Reply · Message · 1w

Jason Christensen Jarred Bird so what is our alternative? How do we create sediment traps to reduce the effect?

Like · Reply · Message · 1w · Edited

Jarred Bird Jason Christensen the Tukituki is all but stuffed now, can't remove anything below the Waipawa river due to needle grass. The large flat areas left by gravel extraction on inside bends used to catch a heap of silt. That's why they were always taken as other boney areas required the addition of silt to the aggregate costing more. So now they are gone a higher percentage will just carry on out to sea. Even the raw silt used to be taken for fill material on jobs removing a huge amount from the system.

Like · Reply · Message · 1w

Jarred Bird Jason Christensen you edited one of the previous posts, how is it that you think gravel extraction narrows the river? Think of it like a hose pre extraction it's like a garden hose small and confined, post extraction it's like putting that same volume of water through a 50mm hose. The water would barely trickle out due to how much the velocity has decreased. It's basic fluid dynamics.

Like · Reply · Message · 1w

Susan Grace Rowlands Jason Christensen yes and all the townships still put raw sewerage into these rivers that barely flow anymore. because we have had no rain the Makaretu and Tukipo are nearly at a standstill with respect to flow.

Like · Reply · Message · 1w

Jason Christensen Jarred Bird when you extract gravel you deepen the bed, thus narrowing the water body and creating more velocity

Like · Reply · Message · 5d

Jarred Bird Jason Christensen extraction doesn't deepen the bed it widens it in most cases. If you remove a beach on an in bend it will normally more than double that corners capacity slowing the water and reducing erosion on the outside bank.

Pikiz Palace So your gonna damage and change rivers? What about protecting our kai sources of local iwi? This council needs to look at itself if you want to save money audit the use of your vehicles and your staff and entire institution! For starters I see council vehicles being used at all hours of the day by people doing non job related things like grocery shopping and picking up takeaways even outside of central hawkes bay. You know you cant raise people's rates on one hand and then on the other expect those people to pay for your staff's vehicles and petrol without pointing the finger back at you and expecting you to make positive changes to help solve money issues let alone environmental issues.

Like · Reply · Message · 1w · Edited

Jarred Bird Pikiz Palace you do realise vehicles will be negotiated into a remuneration package no different to any other business? If you take the vehicle away you just pay the person more to provide their own and will struggle to employ/keep decent staff.

Like · Reply · Message · 1w

Pikiz Palace Jarred Bird I really dont care, it's not a private business that's my point exactly...the council need to look within themselves going to the supermarket or other shopping outside of business hours should prompt an audit of the entire system at a time when sustainability and funds are an issue. I just see it as a waste of rates money. When people are using vehicles for any travel including personal how can you even budget for that as part of someone remuneration? I say pay them the remuneration and cut the shady areas to be more transparent.

Like · Reply · Message · 1w

Jarred Bird Pikiz Palace there's lots of public jobs where a vehicle is included in the salary package. There are readily available formulas and the HBRC themselves will know what their vehicle running costs are so when they advertise a job or it's negotiated they can add or remove the cost of the vehicle from the package. It may be $60k/year with a vehicle or $68k/year without. It costs the rate payer the same either way.

Susan Grace Rowlands Johnny Butler yes. It has been put on the back burner such that now you do not step down to the river, you actually step up to a pile of rock and the river has gone underground. 30 to 35 years it has not been addressed but supposedly we pay for it. Why should we pay twice for what has essentially been neglected and overlooked and put on the backburner.

We are consulting the community on a new form of public transport that replaces fixed routes with an on-demand service.

Passengers would be able to order rides through an app or over the phone using either a mobile or their landline, and if using a smart phone, can track their ride on the app.

It is a 'corner to corner' service so passengers may have to walk around 200m to be picked up. ... See More

What do you think about creating a Regional Park in the Ahuriri Estuary? We would be working together with Napier City Council to plan, design and manage all the waterways, drains and stormwater in the area so we can hugely improve the biodiversity, and bring cultural and recreation benefits for all our community.

Find out more and tell us what you think here: <https://bit.ly/2QWKSYS>

Lorraine Harrington I think money would be better spent on housing for the elderly, I've got 2 year's till I retire, but I'll never be able to retire due to the rent's these day's, I'm going to have to work till I die to be able to feed myself and pay rent!

I have spent my life swimming, windsurfing and walking around it. During lockdown last year, I watched the water on the Thames Street side of the estuary go from a dirty murky mess to clean water with life in it. I mentioned this to someone at HBRC, and it was discounted as being a due to a lack of rain or tidal anomaly. Well done Councils...way overdue 😊

Andy Flint Hadland What a joke. Catching the bus was always such a mission and you had to plan your day carefully according to the bus times which were almost never on time. You push the button to hop off and they won't stop the bus to let you off. Honestly getting a car and having my own independence for my own convenience is far better

Paul Greaney This is quite honestly one of the stupidest things I have ever seen! So rather than have a car leave point a and go to point b, there is going to be a bus that is driving around all day doing the same job as a bloody taxi? Surely encouraging taxis to be hybrids or electric vehicles (even though the emissions trade off is a farce) and subsidising them would be simpler? Rather than invest hundreds of thousands of ratepayer money into an app which already exists in the form of Uber? HBRC have no clue, it's actually embarrassing that these are our elected councillors, and this is the best they can come up with. Sad times ahead for the future generations.

Ben Lee Just think about this " We're looking for innovative ways to get people out of their cars and onto public transport. " They are not talking about people without transport options. They're talking, you, me, everyone. This isn't London central. Hell we don't even have a bus lane in the whole region. No, this is a very silly idea. Is this why taxis pick up multiple passengers from different locations? Oh wait, they don't. So the medium sized bus is floating around the suburbs making multiple pick ups at different times that were booked and everyone gets to their appointment's on schedule.

Water is absolutely critical in our natural environment and for the health of our people, but here in Hawke's Bay the effects of climate change mean we are having too much water at times of the year we don't need it, and too little at the times of year that we do.

One of the consultation topics in our Long Term Plan proposal - Time to Act - is around future water use. Our proposal aims to develop ways to make better use of the water we have.

Did you know that around 250,000 hectares of Hawke's Bay land is highly-erodible? The Right Tree, Right Place pilot programme aims to transform the region's eroding hillsides, and we know that putting the right trees in the right places is the best way to slow erosion, improving our freshwater quality and biodiversity.

This pilot would partner with private landowners, investors and forestry companies to offer a tree planting solution preserving farm viability for the sheep and beef industry.

This is one of the consultation topics in our Long Term Plan consultation – Time to Act. Tell us what you think? Find out more here - #TimeToActHBRC

Use whatever means necessary - fake climate change - instead stop crazy Bill Gates spraying chalk into the atmosphere as another of his maniac guinea pig experiments. How many logging trucks did I pass on the road on a short trip from Hastings to Te Aute? At least twenty maybe more. Says it all really. Make it look like natives but really radiata. NZ now dependent on other countries for products where we used to be totally independent. Covid showed our vulnerability. Shove your NWO and forestry where the sun don't shine. WAKE UP NZ!!!

Not pretty natives that is the programmed narrative they want u to believe. How to achieve agenda - manipulate markets, weather and global warming. No more rolling country with sheep, cattle dairy and orchards for HB. Wake up NZ. This is Communism. Guess who buys our timber, owns our forests etc China. Hawke's Bay Regional Council Hi, we want to be clear the Right Tree Right Place proposal is not about whole farm afforestation. It is about supporting farmers to maintain their pastoral unit, in the face of regulation, and a changing climate, by planting their erodible land in trees, with a small reduction in stocking units. This proposal is about helping our rural community prosper and thrive.

Hawke's Bay Regional Council Hi Sally, we encourage farmers to contact their local Regional Council office and talk to a catchment advisor about their options in terms of grants for planting, fencing and riparian management. Also, protecting private land via a QEII National Trust covenant is an effective way to help protect the habitat of threatened animal and plant species.

We're consulting on our 10-year Plan - Time to Act - until 2 May. This plan is reviewed every three years to reset direction for what Council invests in, how much it will cost, and how we'll fund it. There's a lot we need to do and that means rates will go up, but we are also borrowing to ease the load.

We know you'll likely have plenty of questions, so we're holding public meetings in your area and a Facebook Live event towards the end of the month. You can find all these events on our Facebook page.

Andrew Reynoud The plan is for a 19.5% rates increase this year (partly as a result of deferral of last years increase), and a doubling of rates by the end of 25-26 - yet this is not what the consultation is about. Instead the consultation is about 6 minor embellishments to the plan where we have a highly limited choice of options. This is not genuine consultation.

Hawke's Bay Regional Council Hi Andrew, we are encouraging people to make submissions on all aspects of the plan including the consultation topics and the work that council sees as 'must-do'. You can make a submission here: https://www.consultations.nz/.../time-to-act-submission... Thanks.

Michael Draper Could I ask, what are the costs of these consultations/surveys?

Like · Reply · Message · 3w

Hawke's Bay Regional Council Michael Draper, we are required to hold a major planning consultation with our community at least once every 3 years. This consultation is budgeted for and costs the council around $65,000. It includes a mail-out to every ratepayer in the region, a promotional campaign, public meetings, videos, social media, etc. Our aim is to engage the wider HB community and seek public feedback (submissions) on our proposals plus any of the other work we do. Cheers, Drew Hawke's Bay has a legacy of environmental issues and a changing climate and our natural surroundings have seen too little investment for too long.

The pace of environmental change and the scale of what is already degraded and needs restoring means we need your help more than ever. Find out about how you can have a say on this work - we are now consulting and want to know what you think.
